First, I would like to thank all my supervisors for giving me this opportunity and for taking the time to guide me through all the ups and downs I faced in the past years. Thanks to Lisbeth for believing in me, opening the doors to research and for showing me the path to this project. To Niels for calling me all the time and for being such a great supporter of my work. To Charlotte for teaching me so much about a whole new field of research and for sharing all her expertise. To Paw for sharing his extensive knowledge on seafood microbiology. And to Ann-Dorit for helping me with my project, sharing her expertise, and supporting me whenever needed.

Maryam, thank you for being the best office buddy one could ask for and for accepting how much I talked and disturbed you. Rannva for being a great friend, for helping me in the lab, and answering all my practical and unpractical questions. To Martin for making me laugh, helping me, and being part of great discussions for the past (five-ish) years. To Mads for being ready for coffee, answering my oxidation-related questions, and discussing the PhD-life whenever needed.

To Nanna, Giulia, and Peter for helping me in the microbiological laboratory and to Inge, Tang, and Lis for their much-appreciated help with various analysis as well as their patience and expertise. To Laura and Steffen for helping me with my analysis and giving me time to do other things. To Hanne for teaching me WHC analysis and Flemming for explaining the results.

I would like to thank Sabrina Macé and her colleagues for welcoming me to Ifremer and for her help during my stay, both work-related and socially.

To Heidi Haraldsen, for taking me into her heart and home whenever I was in Svenstrup. And thank you to the rest of the people at Royal Greenland Seafood's office in Svenstrup J, especially Pernille Jacobsen, Simon Laugaard, and Pernille Bak Andreasen for all their help with sensory stuff during my project. To all the people onboard Avataq who assisted me and to Sámal Jákup Olsen for answering every single question I had about shrimp production and for making my stay on Avataq very pleasant.

I am deeply grateful to my friend Nanna for always encouraging me to believe in my abilities and for having a firm belief in me. As promised, thanks to John for technical assistance whenever needed. To my parents, who had no choice but to listen to me talking excitedly about the project and any new ideas.

I am incredibly grateful to Jonas for always listening to my grievances, offering unwavering support, providing comforting hugs when necessary, and celebrating even the smallest of victories as well as the big ones.
